Big Firm Capability Small Firm Care at an Omaha Law Firm "A client's needs come first. You always have to be responsive to what their needs are. If you say you're going to call them, you have to follow up on your word." Charles V. Sederstrom said that about the practice he helped build, and it still describes the standard Erickson | Sederstrom P.C., L.L.O. aims to hold in Omaha today. The line is simple, but it points to a real tension in legal services: the bigger a firm grows, the easier it becomes for a client to feel like a file number. The firm's own phrase for its approach is "big-firm mastery, small-firm care." On the capability side, that means more than 30 attorneys across ten practice areas, offices in Omaha and Lincoln, attorneys licensed in Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, Colorado and Kansas, and access to national networks through affiliations such as the Employers Counsel Network, SCG Legal, and The Harmonie Group. About 12 attorneys focus on litigation, which gives a business litigation attorney handling a complex contract dispute the depth of a team behind them, along with experience in appeals before state and federal courts, including the Nebraska Supreme Court. The care side is harder to list on a website but easier to notice in practice. It shows up when a phone call is returned when promised, when an attorney asks enough questions to understand how a family company actually runs, and when the same people are still involved five or fifteen years later. The firm places real weight on multi-generational client relationships, and those only form when trust holds over time. Active listening and problem solving are named parts of its philosophy for exactly that reason.

Comparing approaches helps clarify the value. A very large practice may offer deep benches but route routine questions through layers of staff, while a solo practitioner may be personally attentive but stretched thin when a matter suddenly calls for tax, employment, and real estate input at once. A mid-sized Omaha law firm with a full-service structure tries to sit between those models, so a corporate lawyer can bring in an estate planning attorney or a tax colleague within the same firm without the client having to find and brief someone new. The Midwest values the firm names, loyalty and respect, are meant to guide how that coordination feels from the client's side of the table. Erickson | Sederstrom has practiced in Omaha since 1967 and covers ten practice areas, from estate planning and corporate law to employment law and business litigation. Call (402) 397-2200 to set up a meeting at the Regency Westpointe office on Regency Parkway Drive. The Omaha office is open Monday to Friday, 8 AM to 5 PM. What are red flags when hiring a lawyer? Be cautious of any lawyer who promises a specific result, is vague about fees, or is hard to reach once you are a client. Charles V. Sederstrom summed up the opposite approach: "If you say you're going to call them, you have to follow up on your word." Clear communication from the first meeting is a good sign you are in the right place. What should I look for in a larger Omaha law firm? Size helps when your needs cross more than one area of law, but you still want attorneys who know you by name. Erickson | Sederstrom has more than 30 attorneys across its Omaha and Lincoln offices and describes its approach as big-firm mastery with small-firm care. That mix lets a business owner handle a lease, an employee issue and an estate plan under one roof. What does a full-service law firm handle? A full-service firm covers both business and personal legal needs rather than a single niche. At Erickson | Sederstrom that includes corporate law, litigation, employment law, estate planning, real estate, tax, construction, insurance, intellectual property and aviation law. Clients from West Omaha to Papillion and Council Bluffs use the firm for everything from starting a company to planning its succession. When should an Omaha business hire a corporate lawyer? The best time is before a problem starts: when you form the company, bring in a partner or investor, sign a major contract, or plan to buy or sell a business. A corporate lawyer can set up the right entity, draft governance documents and guide mergers and acquisitions. Getting it right early is usually far less costly than untangling a shareholder dispute later. Do I need an estate planning attorney in Nebraska? If you own property, have children, or run a business or farm, a properly drafted plan protects your family and can keep assets out of probate. Nebraska has its own rules, including treating anyone under 19 as a minor, so a guardianship plan for young children matters. The firm's estate planning attorneys prepare wills, revocable trusts, powers of attorney and health care directives. How long does probate take in Nebraska? Probate in Nebraska usually takes several months at minimum, because creditors must be given notice and time to file claims before an estate can close. Contested matters or complex assets can stretch that much longer. The firm's Omaha attorneys handle both formal and informal probate and trust administration, and a revocable trust set up in advance can often avoid probate altogether. What does an employment attorney do for employers? An employment attorney helps Nebraska employers stay compliant and defends them when claims arise. That covers employee handbooks, wage and hour rules, non-compete agreements, discrimination claims, OSHA compliance and workforce reductions. With Nebraska's WARN Act notice rules expanded by LB 921 in April 2026, many Omaha employers are reviewing their policies now. What is business litigation? Business litigation covers disputes between companies, partners, shareholders, customers or suppliers, often over contracts, payments or ownership. The firm has around a dozen attorneys who focus on litigation in Douglas County, federal court in Omaha and on appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court. Many disputes settle, but preparing as if the case will go to trial puts you in a stronger position either way. Can an Omaha law firm help with matters in Iowa? Yes, if its attorneys are licensed there. Erickson | Sederstrom attorneys are licensed in Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, Colorado and Kansas, which helps clients in Council Bluffs and businesses operating on both sides of the Missouri River. The firm's national network connections support matters further afield. Where is the Erickson | Sederstrom Omaha office?
