The eco-friendly season, roughly November to May out 3-day masai mara safari package of doors the lengthy rains, is the Mara's quality value. Rates drop, camps are quiet, and the reserve seems to be utterly one of a kind: fresh grass, wild plant life, dramatic skies.

Predators are more easy to discover considering the fact that they do now not practice herds far, and resident flora and fauna concentrates close to water. Photography benefits from smooth air and cloud structure.

The change-off is rain. Short rains in November and April carry afternoon storms and muddy tracks, so a 4x4 is a must have and a few camps close in April and May. For travelers who worth solitude over migration, inexperienced season is the properly call. Seasonal notes are at %LINK%.
