Characteristics of Genuine Rebel Flags

When identifying respectable insurgent flags, a couple of causes come into play. The substances used, production tactics, and even signs of wear can all provide insight into regardless of whether a flag is exact or no longer.

Fabric and Material

Authentic insurgent flags from the Civil War technology have been almost always fabricated from wool or cotton. These constituents have been regularly occurring at the time through their availability and toughness. Wool flags have been recurrently used for fight criteria because they might withstand harsher weather situations without deteriorating immediately. Conversely, cotton changed into extra frequent for indoor use or ceremonial purposes.
