Guests may never see your bedroom, but they will almost certainly see your kitchen and use your bathroom. Those two rooms also take the most effort to clean properly, with grease, water spots, soap scum and food residue building up every single day. For Roanoke households that want those spaces consistently spotless, The Happy Housekeepers provides a cleaning service that puts kitchens and bathrooms at the center of every visit.

The Rooms That Make or Break a Clean Home

A full kitchen cleanup is part of the company's standard residential checklist. Counters, sinks, appliance exteriors and cabinet fronts are cleaned, floors are mopped and trash is emptied. When you want to go further, the specialized services list includes cleaning inside the oven and inside the refrigerator, two jobs that most people dread. Together they turn a busy family kitchen in Cave Spring or Salem into a space you are happy to cook in again.

Bathrooms receive the same thorough approach. Toilets, tubs, showers, sinks, mirrors and floors are cleaned and sanitized as part of a full bathroom cleanup. In older Roanoke homes with original tile, careful attention to grout lines and fixtures can make a dated bathroom look surprisingly fresh. Homes with several bathrooms often benefit most from a weekly or bi-weekly plan, since nothing has the chance to build up between visits.

The same expertise carries over into commercial spaces. Through its Corporate Clean division, the company sanitizes bathrooms and phones in executive offices, general offices and medical facilities around Roanoke. It can even help arrange suppliers for restroom and kitchen paper products. Business owners who want staff break rooms and customer restrooms to reflect well on their company can schedule service daily, weekly, bi-monthly or monthly.

The company supplies all the products and equipment needed, and if you prefer a particular product on your stainless steel appliances or a specific cleaner for natural stone, the crew will use it. Employees are bonded and insured, so you can be at work during residential cleaning Roanoke your visit. The Happy Housekeepers has served the Roanoke Valley since 1979, is licensed, bonded and insured, and has held BBB accreditation since 1993 with an A+ rating.

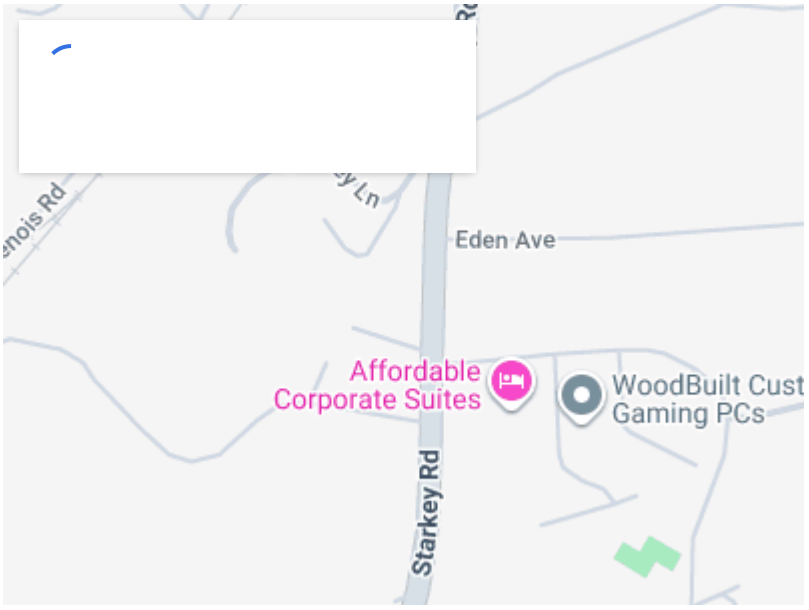

Regular professional attention also protects the surfaces themselves. Hard water spots, soap scum and kitchen grease are much easier to remove when they are tackled every week or two instead of every few months. Left too long, they can etch fixtures, dull countertops and stain grout permanently. A recurring kitchen and bathroom focused plan keeps those rooms looking newer for longer, which is a real benefit for anyone planning to sell their home down the line.
