Men tend to arrive at a rhinoplasty consultation with a short list and a firm boundary. They want the bump gone, the crooked line straightened, or the breathing fixed, and they do not want to look as though they have had surgery. That boundary is reasonable. Male rhinoplasty is not a scaled-down version of a female procedure. It follows different aesthetic principles, and a nose that would look refined on one face can look out of place on another. The main differences come down to the bridge and the tip. A masculine nose usually keeps a straighter, stronger dorsum, without the gentle scoop that some women request. The tip generally sits with less upward rotation, so the angle between the nose and the upper lip stays closer to a right angle rather than turning up. Tip definition is often kept subtler, and the width of the nose is considered in relation to a broader jaw and brow. Dr. Jacob Sedgh, a double board-certified facial plastic surgeon in West Hollywood, lists male rhinoplasty among the core procedures of a practice focused on the nose, face, ears and neck. Function is frequently part of the conversation for men. Old sports injuries, a nose broken years ago, or a septum that has always leaned to one side can all contribute to a blocked airway. Because Dr. Sedgh is board certified in otolaryngology and trained in head and neck surgery before his facial plastic fellowship, the internal structures are assessed alongside the external shape. Where a deviated septum is involved, cosmetic and functional work can sometimes be planned together as a septorhinoplasty, subject to a medical evaluation.

Practical concerns matter as well. Many men want to know how long they will be away from work or the gym. Recovery varies from person to person, and swelling takes months to settle completely, but the Piezo ultrasonic system Dr. Sedgh uses for reshaping bone has been associated in published studies with less bruising and swelling in the first week. Men coming from Century City offices, from Culver City, Palms or Mar Vista, or from homes in Bel Air and Beverlywood generally Los Angeles Nose Job reach the Sunset Strip by way of Santa Monica Boulevard, La Cienega Boulevard or the 405. Considering a Los Angeles nose job as a man means asking direct questions about risks, recovery time and cost, which is quoted at consultation based on complexity, anesthesia and facility fees. To discuss male rhinoplasty with Dr. Sedgh, call (310) 888-2884 and book a consultation at 9201 Sunset Blvd, Suite 414, West Hollywood. The office is open Monday to Friday, 9am to 5pm.

FAQ About Los Angeles Nose Job What is the average cost of a nose job in Los Angeles? There is no single figure, because the fee depends on whether the surgery is primary or revision, how much structural work is needed, and the anesthesia and surgical facility costs. Revision and combined functional and cosmetic cases usually take longer than a straightforward primary rhinoplasty. At Jacob Sedgh, MD in West Hollywood, a written quote follows the consultation once Dr. Sedgh has examined the nose and agreed a plan with the patient. How long does a nose job last? The structural changes from rhinoplasty are designed to be permanent, although the nose continues to age naturally with the rest of the face. Swelling settles gradually, and the tip can take a year or more to show its final definition. Dr. Jacob Sedgh follows patients through that first year from his office on Sunset Blvd. Is rhinoplasty 100% safe? No surgery is free of risk. Rhinoplasty carries risks such as bleeding, infection, breathing changes, asymmetry and the possibility of needing revision. Dr. Sedgh, a double board-certified facial plastic surgeon, reviews medical history, candidacy and specific risks at consultation so patients can make an informed decision before anything is scheduled. How do I choose a rhinoplasty surgeon in Los Angeles? Look at board certification, the surgeon's training, how much of their practice is devoted to the nose, and before and after photos of noses similar to yours. Dr. Jacob Sedgh trained in head and neck surgery at the University of Pittsburgh and completed a facial plastic surgery fellowship at Penn State Hershey, and his practice is limited to the nose, face, ears and neck. A consultation is also a chance to judge how clearly a surgeon explains the plan. Do ENT surgeons do rhinoplasty? Many facial plastic surgeons, including Dr. Sedgh, began in otolaryngology, the ENT specialty, before completing fellowship training in facial plastic and reconstructive surgery. That background means the septum, airway and nasal valves are part of every rhinoplasty plan, not only the outside shape. Patients with breathing complaints can have functional and cosmetic goals assessed together in West Hollywood. Can insurance cover any part of a nose job? Purely cosmetic rhinoplasty is not covered by insurance. Functional work, such as correcting a deviated septum that blocks breathing, may be partly covered when the problem is documented and the plan's criteria are met. Jacob Sedgh, MD can explain which parts of a combined procedure are functional and which are cosmetic; call (310) 888-2884 to ask. What is recovery like after rhinoplasty? Most patients wear a splint for about the first week and see the worst bruising and swelling fade over the following weeks, although every recovery is different. Strenuous exercise, glasses resting on the nose and strong sun are usually limited for a period. Dr. Sedgh uses the Piezo ultrasonic system for bone work, which published studies associate with less early bruising, and he gives each patient written aftercare instructions. Is it better to have a nose job abroad or in Los Angeles? Surgery abroad can look cheaper at first, but follow-up visits, managing complications and any future revision are much harder from another country. Having rhinoplasty in Los Angeles keeps the surgeon within reach for the whole first year of healing. Patients from across the city, including Beverly Hills, Century City, Westwood and Culver City, see Dr. Sedgh at one office on the Sunset Strip. What is male rhinoplasty? Male rhinoplasty adapts the operation to masculine facial features, usually keeping a straighter, stronger bridge and avoiding an over-rotated or overly narrow tip. Many men also want better breathing at the same time. Dr. Jacob Sedgh plans male rhinoplasty around the brow, cheekbones and jawline so the nose stays in proportion with the face. What is revision rhinoplasty and when is it needed? Revision rhinoplasty corrects concerns that remain after an earlier nose surgery, whether cosmetic or functional. It is more intricate than a first operation because of scar tissue, reduced cartilage and changed skin. Dr. Sedgh evaluates the previous surgery and generally advises waiting until the nose has fully settled before planning a revision at his West Hollywood practice. What is the difference between open and closed rhinoplasty? Open rhinoplasty adds a small incision across the columella, the strip of skin between the nostrils, which gives the surgeon a direct view of the tip structures. Closed rhinoplasty keeps all incisions inside the nose. The right approach depends on the anatomy and the changes needed, and Dr. Sedgh explains his recommendation at consultation. Is a non-surgical nose job permanent? A non-surgical nose job uses injectable filler to smooth a bump or lift the tip, and the effect is temporary. Filler cannot make a nose smaller or improve breathing, and it carries its own risks. Jacob Sedgh, MD offers both injectable and surgical options and can explain which suits a patient's goals; call (310) 888-2884 to book a consultation.
