

Terengganu Holiday Schedule 2027: Key Dates for School Terms and Breaks

The Ministry of Education has released the 2027 school calendar for Malaysia, confirming the term dates and holiday periods that will govern the academic year for all states, including those under the Terengganu grouping. The calendar, which applies to public schools nationwide, is structured around two main semesters with scheduled breaks for major festivals and mid-term holidays. For parents and educators in Terengganu, the terengganu holiday schedule 2027 is a key reference for planning family trips, tuition classes, and other commitments around the school year.

How the 2027 School Calendar Is Organised

The academic year for 2027 is divided into two semesters, each separated by a year-end break. Within each semester, a mid-term holiday splits the term into two parts. The Ministry of Education groups states into two clusters for the purposes of setting term dates and holidays: Group A includes Kedah, Kelantan, Johor, and Terengganu, while Group B covers the remaining states and federal territories. This grouping affects the timing of breaks, especially for the Hari Raya Aidilfitri and Hari Raya Haji holidays, which may fall in different weeks for each group.

The terengganu holiday schedule 2027 follows the Group A pattern. This means that school terms in Terengganu start and end on slightly different dates compared to states in Group B. The Ministry of Education coordinates the calendar with public holidays and major religious festivals to minimise disruption to learning and to allow families to observe important celebrations.

Key Dates for the First Semester

The 2027 school year for Terengganu begins in early January. The first semester runs from January through late May, followed by a mid-year break that typically lasts four weeks. The first semester is further split by a mid-term holiday, which in 2027 is scheduled to coincide with the Chinese New Year period in February. For Group A states, the Chinese New Year break is set for the week of the 2027 Chinese New Year public holidays, giving students a full week off.

The Hari Raya Aidilfitri holiday, which is one of the longest breaks in the Malaysian school calendar, falls in the first semester for 2027. For Terengganu, the Hari Raya Aidilfitri holiday is expected to begin in the second week of April and last for approximately two weeks, including the weekend before and after the main celebration. This break aligns with the school calendar to allow students and teachers to celebrate with their families. The exact dates are confirmed in the Ministry of Education circular, but the Terengganu holiday schedule 2027 places the Aidilfitri break in mid-April.

Second Semester and Year-End Holidays

The second semester for Terengganu starts in early June, after the mid-year break. This semester runs through late November, with a mid-term holiday in September to coincide with the Deepavali festival. For Group A states, the Deepavali break is scheduled for the week of the Deepavali public holiday, which in 2027 falls in mid-October. The second semester also includes the Hari Raya Haji holiday, which is observed with a one-day break in late June or early July, depending on the lunar calendar.

The year-end holiday for Terengganu begins in late November and extends through the end of December. This break covers the Christmas holiday period and the New Year. The Ministry of Education typically schedules the year-end break to last about six weeks, allowing students and teachers a substantial rest before the next academic year begins in January 2028.

Understanding the State Grouping System

The Ministry of Education groups states into Group A and Group B to manage the timing of school terms and holidays across the country. This grouping takes into account the different regional calendars, public holidays, and cultural observances. For Terengganu, being in Group A means that the start and end dates of terms, as well as the placement of breaks, are identical to those in Kedah, Kelantan, and Johor. This consistency helps families and schools in these states coordinate activities and travel.

The grouping also affects the scheduling of the Hari Raya Aidilfitri holiday, which is the longest break in the academic year. For Group A states, the Aidilfitri break is typically earlier in April compared to Group B states, which may have it later in the same month. This difference is important for families with children in different states or for those planning interstate travel during the holiday period.

Planning Around the Terengganu Holiday Schedule

Knowing the Terengganu holiday schedule 2027 allows parents and educators to plan ahead. The calendar provides specific dates for each term and holiday, enabling families to book travel, schedule tuition, and arrange childcare during school breaks. It also helps teachers and school administrators to plan the academic curriculum, examinations, and co-curricular activities around the holidays.

The Ministry of Education releases the annual school calendar several months before the start of the academic year, usually in the third quarter of the preceding year. This advance notice gives schools and families time to adjust their schedules. For the 2027 school year, the calendar was published in late 2026 and is available on the ministry's official portal and through state education departments.

Parents in Terengganu should note that the school calendar may be subject to change if there are unforeseen events such as public health emergencies or natural disasters. The Ministry of Education reserves the right to amend the calendar as needed, and any changes are communicated through official channels.

Comparison with Other States

While the terengganu holiday schedule 2027 shares the same structure as other Group A states, it differs from Group B states in several ways. For example, the first semester for Group B states starts a week later than Group A in January. The Hari Raya Aidilfitri break for Group B states is scheduled for late April, while Group A states have it in mid-April. These differences are designed to stagger the holidays across the country to reduce congestion on roads and at popular holiday destinations.

The year-end holiday also varies slightly between groups. Group A states finish the academic year earlier in November, while Group B states may end a week later. This means that the year-end break for Terengganu begins a week before that of states like Selangor or Penang. Families with children in different states should check the specific calendar for each school to avoid scheduling conflicts.

Key Takeaways for 2027

The 2027 school calendar for Terengganu is built around a two-semester system with four main holiday periods: the Chinese New Year break in February, the Hari Raya Aidilfitri break in April, the mid-year break in June, the Deepavali break in October, and the year-end break from late November through December. The calendar also includes several shorter public holidays throughout the year, such as Labour Day on May 1 and Malaysia Day on September 16, which may result in additional days off for students.

Parents are advised to refer to the official Ministry of Education circular for the exact dates of each term and holiday. The calendar is published in PDF format on the ministry's website and is also distributed to schools through state education departments. Schools in Terengganu typically share the calendar with parents during the first week of the academic year, either through a printed handout or via the school's communication platform.

Understanding the terengganu holiday schedule 2027 is essential for anyone involved in education in the state. The schedule not only determines when school is in session but also influences the timing of national examinations, co-curricular activities, and school events. By knowing the holiday dates in advance, families can make informed decisions about travel, tuition, and other activities that affect their children's education.
